OVERVIEW

Chris Graff is an internationally recognized intellectual property lawyer, whose practice focuses on brand management and protection, trademarks, domain names, social media, and copyrights. For more than two decades, Chris has helped protect some of the world's leading brands in multiple jurisdictions around the world. He has been repeatedly recognized for his work counseling clients on brand expansion, international protection, and worldwide enforcement strategies. As one international publication noted, "Chris Graff garners worldwide notice for his exemplary protection programmes," and that "He and his team's understanding of foreign jurisdictions is a genuinely rare quality and speaks volumes about their expertise, experience and high standards."

Chris has broad experience helping clients in all areas of trademark law, from clearance and prosecution, to policing and enforcement. He also provides strategic management of global trademark portfolios for several companies in a variety of industries, including retail services, food and beverage, consumer products, finance, technology, and medical devices. Chris has also represented clients in hundreds of contested matters in the US and internationally. "That he acts for some of the highest-profile brand owners tells you all you need to know. He simply has an immense depth of experience." WTR 1000 (2015)

PROFESSIONAL BACKGROUND

Christopher previously served at a United States law firm that focuses in the fields of trademark, copyright, and unfair competition law. Through this role, Christopher practiced in the areas of trademarks, false advertising, unfair competition, domain name privacy, and copyrights. He has experience in advising in these facets, as well as with regard to trademark selection, prosecution, enforcement, licensing, and global portfolio management.
