OVERVIEW

Dominic Fleeton is a partner in the firm's Labor, Employment, and Workplace Safety practice. He helps clients manage safety-related crises. This work goes beyond the provision of strict legal advice and includes managing internal and external stakeholders, ensuring that all relevant regulatory and internal obligations are complied with while always remaining focused on the minimising the client's legal risk exposure.

Dominic is an experienced employment, industrial relations and safety litigator and, in all cases, seeks to identify upfront the client's commercial and other goals and then looks for the most simple and effective options to achieve those goals. Dominic knows how to balance the robust pursuit and defence of claims and the management of clients' reputational outcomes.

Dominic is a strategic industrial relations adviser who focuses on helping clients achieve their end game.

REPRESENTATIVE EXPERIENCE

- Represented Macquarie Bank in the Federal Circuit Court and Federal Court its defence of a range of complex underpayment claims brought by eight groups of former employees.
- Represented a major civil construction company and several of its employees who were sued by the CFMMEU alleging various breaches of the Fair Work Act’s right of entry provisions relating to a level crossing removal project in Melbourne.
- Advising a large number of employers on a range of issues arising from the COVID pandemic, including the effect of Public Health Orders on the employment of various employees, mandatory vaccination policies, obligations under work health and safety legislation.

- Assisting various employers to defend claims brought by individuals whose employment came to an end due to the COVID pandemic.
- Advising a large superannuation fund on the employment and IR related aspects of a merger with another super fund and assisting with the process of transferring employees across from the other fund.
- Assisted a major construction company during a regulator investigation of a fatality which occurred during construction at a mine site in regional New South Wales. Mr. Fleeton assisted the client and various senior executives in its dealings with the regulator and to formulate responses to a large number of notices requiring the provision of information and documentation which were issued by the regulator.
- Advised and represented a client operating in the meat industry in a prosecution for an alleged breach of the Occupational Health and Safety Act 2004 (Vic) arising from a serious injury to a labour hire worker. Mr. Fleeton advised the client on prospects, worked with counsel to prepare a plea in mitigation and, as a result, helped the client to avoid conviction.
- Provided briefings and advice to senior executives and Boards in relation to the officers' duty of due diligence imposed under the harmonised work health and safety legislation and associated compliance mechanisms.
- Represented a Commonwealth agency in a racial discrimination action brought by a former employee in the Federal Circuit Court.
- Represented employers in relation to disputes raised by employees and trade unions pursuant to dispute resolution procedures contained in enterprise agreements. This work has involved representing employers in conciliation processes and arbitration proceedings conducted by the Fair Work Commission.
- Assisted a large number of employers to bargain for new or replacement enterprise agreements in a manner which ensures full compliance with the Fair Work Act 2009.
- Assisted employers to prepare for, and deal with, protected and unprotected industrial action taken by employees, including obtaining injunctions and similar orders from courts and the Fair Work Commission to prevent or stop such action.
- Assisted an employer in the manufacturing industry successfully resist an attempt by the CFMEU to have the Fair Work Commission reject the employer's application for approval of an enterprise agreement covering Queensland-based employees.
- Assists various Commonwealth agencies to comply with the Public Interest Disclosure Act 2013, including investigations conducted pursuant to that legislation.
- Represented a Commonwealth agency in relation to allegations made by a former employee to the Commonwealth Ombudsman allegation non-compliance with the Public Interest Disclosure Act 2013.
- Advising Commonwealth agencies in relation to the matters concerning the Public Service Act 1999, including alleged breaches of the Code of Conduct.
- Represented the Australian Building and Construction Commissioner and the Commonwealth to successfully defend a proceeding brought by a former employee in the Federal Circuit Court seeking judicial review of the decision to terminate his employment and alleging contraventions of the Fair Work Act 2009. The claim was dismissed and costs orders were made in favour of both respondents, including an indemnity costs order in favour of the ABC Commissioner. The former employee's subsequent appeal to the Federal Court was dismissed as a result of his failure to provide security for costs as ordered by the Court.

- Assisted a corporate group operating in the building and construction sector to take steps to ensure that the group members' industrial instruments were compliant with the Code for the Tendering and Performance of Building Work 2016. This involved varying some enterprise agreements and replacing others.
