OVERVIEW

Clifford Alexander concentrates in banking, investment company, broker-dealer, and investment adviser law. He formerly served as primary outside counsel to the National Society of Compliance Professionals, an association of investment adviser and broker-dealer compliance officers.

He has had a varied financial practice that includes the organization of four national banks as limited purpose trust companies and the representation of numerous state and federally chartered banks on their trust, investment management, and securities activities. His legal experience also has included representation of large and small foreign financial firms establishing branches and affiliates in the United States, and U.S. banks establishing offices and affiliates in other countries.

PROFESSIONAL BACKGROUND

From 1982 to 1983, Cliff served as counsel to the Task Force on Banking Boards and Commissions of the President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Controls (Grace Commission). From 1975 to 1977, he was assistant counsel to the Securities Subcommittee of the U.S. Senate Committee on Banking, Housing and Urban Affairs. While on the Committee Staff, he was responsible for a study of the Glass-Steagall Act and was involved in the legislative hearings on the International Banking Act of 1978. He was with a Boston law firm from 1970-1975; and from 1967-1970, was with the Securities and Exchange Commission.
