OVERVIEW

Steve Topetzes is a partner in the firm's Washington, D.C. office. His practice centers on the defense of financial services clients and other companies or individuals with respect to government investigations, regulatory or private litigation, and corporate internal investigations. He represents public companies, boards of directors, banks, broker-dealers, investment advisers, investment companies, underwriters, and individuals in investigations or examinations by the United States Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC), the United States Department of Justice (DOJ), the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA), the United States Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau (CFPB), federal banking regulators, and state securities regulators or attorneys general. He also has extensive experience handling complex litigation, regulatory enforcement proceedings, class action lawsuits, mutual fund excessive fee litigation, and arbitrations.

Steve advises clients with respect to investigations or litigation involving:

- Corporate disclosure issues
- Securities sales practice, investment banking or asset securitization issues
- Accounting irregularities and financial reporting issues
- Conflicts of interest or asserted corporate governance failures
- Compliance or supervisory issues
- Whistleblowers
- Municipal Securities
- Broker-Dealer regulation
- Investment management and registered or private funds
- Alleged insider trading or market manipulation
- Claims against corporate officers or directors
- Mortgage origination and servicing
- The False Claims Act and FIRREA
- Anti-Money Laundering Procedures

His practice includes frequent representation of accountants and lawyers with respect to regulatory investigations or proceedings and related shareholder claims.
